Research Interests

High-dimensional repeated-measures data, Multimodal data, Tensor Regression, Bayesian Statistics, Computational Statistics.

Experience

- May 2023– Ongoing Graduate Research Assistant, DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA, Supervisor: Dr. Sanvesh Srivastava.
- Developed a computationally efficient Bayesian methodology for prediction and fixed effects selection with mixed-effects models in high-dimensional repeated-measures data with tensor-valued covariates.
 - Leveraged random projections to handle high-dimensional random effects covariance matrices and established theoretical guarantees of the associated Bayes risk of the proposed method.
 - Demonstrated the advantages of the proposed approach over existing penalized quasi-likelihood methods through extensive simulation studies and real-data analyses in biomedical and behavioral science applications.
- Aug 2021– Ongoing Graduate Teaching Assistant, DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA.
- Teaching Assistant for courses including Bayesian Statistics (STAT 4520), Statistical Learning (STAT 4540), Probabilistic Statistical Learning (DATA 4750), Probability and Statistics for Engineering (STAT 2020), Statistics for Business (STAT 1030).
- Summer 2024 Research Assistant, DEPARTMENT OF GASTROENTEROLOGY AND HEPATOLOGY, WEILL CORNELL MEDICINE,
Supervisor: Dr. Himel Mallick.
- Developed a Bayesian cooperative learning method for multimodal integration, utilizing intermediate fusion and Bayesian regularization for continuous, binary, and survival outcomes.
 - Developed a meta-network analysis method to integrate multiple microbiome studies, using concepts from multi-study machine learning and differential network analysis.
 - Conducted comprehensive benchmarking of these methods using realistic synthetic data and applied them to real-world microbiome and multi-omics datasets, including pregnancy outcomes and cancer immunotherapy response.
